Seoul MirageHello,Thanks for the update and the access link.After my initial review and testing, I'm not satisfied at all with the current state of the project. these are the bugs and issues that i found for the current implmented functionalities :

Bugs (Client side)

- sign up with google
- coming soon section doesn't not display the products knowinf that there products on the database marked as coming soon .

Bugs (Admin side)

- remove the mongoDB IDs column from all the tables (you can just use count 1,2,3.)
- add pagination to all the tables.
- fix the 'Total Categories' counting on the category page .
- remove the description and created at columns from the cagerories table (there is to much columns).
- I've updated some products to 'coming soon' but when a go back to the client side and select the coming soon tab i didn't found any product.
- when edit product images , only the last image is still there .
- be aware of the error and success messages take a look at them all.
- filtering product with category doesn't work .
- do not use hover on product status (also you should choose the appropriate colors : green, orange ,etc).
- you need to make the created at and updated at date at this format 'dd-mm-yyyy'.
- you cannot delete a category if there are products related to this category.
- you need to update the 'Avg. Products/Category' on the categories page after deleting products.
- remove the columns that are not important from the customers table and add a details modal option to see all the details of the customer , apply this to all tables.
- add a button to change the status of promocodes from active to inactive and vice versa.
- enhance the the UI of dashboard (suggestion : change the color of the top navbar).

Also, several issues listed on the tracker sheet are still unresolved, including simple front-end tasks that could've been fixed simultaneously. That's really disappointing.
